For immediate release:

Design consultancy, inspire: have redesigned the front end pages of etribes.com, a social network site where you can store and access your digital life.

The redesigned etribes website focuses on the photography storage and management side of the site although there are plenty of add on features including video and music storage and a blogging platform.

This is phase one of the design process with work already underway to revitalise the inner workings and design of the site.

You can view the new design of the etribes website at www.etribes.com inspire: design consultancy is a, multi disciplinary design practice working in the areas of architecture, retail design and strategy, graphics and digital design.
